FEATURE: CELEBRATE, EDUCATE, UNITE, AND FIGHT: WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

MARCH 22, 2022 | ANOUSHA JOSEPH | 53 COMMENTS

What were the origins of Women's History Month? Why do we celebrate it?

Women's History Month began a little over 4 decades ago, in 1980, when Congress passed Public Law 97-98, dedicating a single week in March to the celebration of women. Soon after, a new petition, Public Law 100-9, was passed, extending this national celebration for the entirety of March.

This month-long celebration works to bring awareness to the often underestimated, underappreciated, and overlooked contributions women have made to society. This month recognizes the incredible achievements women have made throughout U.S. history and brings recognition to the extraordinary women who have been silenced due to sexism and gender stereotypes.

An Attempt to Amend the Past

Throughout history, women have been denied the recognition that they deserve. However, it is possible to learn from the past, educate each other, and continue to fight for justice, which is what Women's History Month is all about.

During March, people often retell stories of brave women of the past and the present who have shaped the world without adequate credit and appreciation. In order to truly emphasize the fact that these women did not fight alone, we must continue to share their stories and our own, which will guarantee that individuals like Rosa Parks, Kamala Harris, and Ruth Bader Ginsburg – to name only a few – are far more than simply names in our textbooks.

Forgotten Women in History

The neglect of influential women in today's educational curriculum is truly disappointing. Until recently, most history textbooks have buried the stories of hundreds of notable women throughout the past. As a result, students – especially young girls – are aware of the major achievements made by male trailblazers without being educated on the hard-working, inspiring, and dedicated women who stood unrecognized behind their male counterparts throughout history.

By taking part in the celebration of Women's History Month, we acknowledge the flaws in the education system which often prevent children of all ages and backgrounds from appreciating and learning about the accomplished women of our society. This month especially, we must make it a priority to celebrate those whose stories have not been told as a result of their sex and to break the gender stereotypes which thrive on the sexist principles rooted and ingrained in our society.

The Fight for Equality

The fight for women's equality is far from over. This Women's History Month, it is important to shed light on the fact that no woman is in this alone in her struggle to be recognized. This month we must bring attention to how far we have come, while also emphasizing that we have a lot more work to do.

Michelle Obama once said, "No country can ever flourish if it stifles the potential of its women and deprives itself of the contributions of half of its citizens." This Women's History Month, be vigilantly aware of the injustice and sexism which dominates the grounds we walk on, and celebrate the incredible accomplishments, progress, and fearlessness of the inspiring women that surround you.

Very good blog! Do you have any recommendations for aspiring writers?

I'm hoping to start my own blog soon but I'm a little lost on everything.

Would you advise starting with a free platform like WordPress or go for a paid option? There are so many options out there that I'm totally confused .. Any ideas? Appreciate it!
